

Robin McDougall

Mr. Robin McDougall is an Applications Engineer with Xcellon, the Products Division of The Aegis Technologies Group. A mechanical engineering graduate of McGill University in Montreal, Canada, Robin has spent the last five years working in the modelling and simulation industry. He provides technical and applications engineering support for acslXtreme and ACSL and brings all the expertise from solving hundreds of user problems into the acslXtreme training class.